

Naya Kanga Peak Climbing in Nepal

<https://www.nectravels.com/package/naya-kanga-peak-climbing/>

Naya Kanga also known as Ganja-la Chuli is the most accessible towering peak over the South of alpine Langtang valley. This peak can be viewed from the hill above Kyangjin Gompa.

Naya Kanga is sharply rising to the west of the Ganja La (5122m) which is also a popular adventurous trekking route giving access to Helambu and Kathmandu Valley.

Naya Kanga (5,844 m) rises to the west of Ganja La is a popular but difficult mountain to climb. The normal route of this peak follows the snowy north-east ridge.

The first climber of this peak is still unknown. The most important reward of climbing Naya Kanga is the stunning view of Langtang Lirung (7246m), Lenpo Gang (7083m), Dorje Lakpa (6990m) and mighty Shishapangma (8027m) on the Tibetan side. Easy access to the region and availability of several snow peaks scattered around for acclimatization make this region an ideal destination for mountaineers..
